Hopefully things have run smoothly so far.

The proposed running order for prosecution witnesses is:

[REDACTED]

followed by:

[REDACTED]
[REDACTED]

Nick Troy

Ron Melville

This should hopefully give a rough idea of when your charges will need collecting and your support.

Contact numbers have been supplied ^{to} [REDACTED]. I will remain in the office all day to liaise where necessary.

The general feeling is that the young people's evidence should all be heard on Monday, though this of course depends upon how the defence Advocate's conduct their case.

Because these are common law offences, Ian Christmas cannot prosecute. However, he will be sitting with Centenier Myles and advising him throughout. They've had frequent discussion in preparation for the hearing and Centenier Myles is apprised of all the facts.

We have prepared a joint press statement for the various eventualities, which will go out, probably on the Wednesday morning if there is a result reached by Tuesday.

There are quite a number of defence witnesses, including ex-staff ([REDACTED] Brenda Chapell) and, to her consternation [REDACTED]. Richard Davenport has also been called at the last minute.

Thanks for all your help. We'll all be glad when this is finally finished.

Marnie
