Steve

Just for communication purposes, it is my understanding the Attorney will be conducting the review of the Wateridge decision and the Solicitor General the decision in the Aubin case (because one of the complainants is [REDACTED]).

Presumably, once we have finalised what the proposed decisions will be in this case with respect to the additional complainants, we should offer a meeting to the police. It may retrieve some of the ground which we might have lost today in relation to the Maguire process.

I will try to make sure that we identify those occasions/decisions when the police might consider that consultation is appropriate. I have no doubt that it will be raised at tomorrow's meeting.
