Children's Clothing.

Children must be taken to town to choose their own clothes. It is essential they should exercise this right quite freely. Only if what they choose is ill fitting or inappropriate for the occasion should an adult interfere and give them tactful guidance. If the adult feels it necessary to veto anything I must be informed of the circumstances. No clothes must be bought for a child in that child's absence. *

Only children who are actually buying clothes will have their bus fares reimbursed.

Staff Training.

In association with the North-West Polytechnic (London) it is proposed to offer in-service training facilities in general Child Care matters during 1972. The arrangements are almost finalised and it is hoped that study courses will start fairly early in the New Year. This course will be recognised by the appropriate Training Authority and will lead to a Certificate of Attendance.
